

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to acknowledge my heartfelt gratitude to my supervisor, Prof. Bijay K. Danta, for his extraordinary understanding, support, and guidance throughout the period of my research. My respect for his scholarship and his innate decency has only increased in leaps and bounds over the years. I would also like to express my deep sense of gratitude to Prof. Farheena Danta for her active support and consideration during the period. The exceedingly supportive Faculty, staff and scholars of the Department of English and Foreign Languages, Tezpur University, deserve a special word of appreciation for their kind support at all times. In particular, I would like to thank Nasmee Akhtar, Nurjahan Begum, Jayprakash Ray, and Junti Baruah, my fellow scholars at the Department of EFL, for going out of their way to help me at different times.

I would also like to express a debt of gratitude to the Tezpur University authorities for extending academic and administrative support, whenever called for. The courteous and generous help I have received from the Librarian and staff at the Tezpur Central Library, the staff at the Nilachal Men's Hostel, the Saraighat C.V. Raman Men's Hostel, and the Tezpur University Guest House at different periods of my research work—first as a full time scholar, then in part time capacity—likewise deserve my sincere appreciation.

I owe a particular debt of gratitude to Dr. Bijay Sarma, former Principal, Jagannath Barooah College, Jorhat, for his encouragement and help during the period of my lien from my workplace under the UGC FDP scheme. Dr. Bimal Barah, the current Principal, and my colleagues at J.B. College, particularly my generous friends at the Department of English, have all contributed in various ways to my research.

I recall with gratitude the help I have received from the Librarian and staff at the National Library, Kolkata, the American Library Kolkata, and the British Council Library, Kolkata. Likewise, I express my thanks to the cooperative Librarian staff at the Krishna Kanta Handique Library, J.B. College.

I am deeply conscious that given the average workload of a teacher of English at the undergraduate level, my research would not have been possible without the UGC-FDP programme, which allowed me to spend three valuable years free from the college curriculum to concentrate on my thesis. I express my sincerest gratitude to the University Grants Commission, particularly the UGC NERO office at Guwahati, for sanctioning my leave. Likewise, I owe my thanks to the office of the Director of Higher Education, Government of Assam, as well as the College Development Council, Dibrugarh University, for endorsing my application for the UGC-FDP programme.

Research is always a collective activity, in which more individuals and institutions contribute than may ever be properly acknowledged. While freely admitting that I shall never perhaps be able to repay their involvement, both for their frequent exhortations and for their tolerance of my long absences, I express my gratitude to my wife, my children and my extended family, including my parents-in-law. Finally, I offer a fond prayer for my father, who has passed on, leaving me his battered copy of John le Carré's A Small Town in Germany, which, many years ago, introduced me to the subject of my research.
