

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all, I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to my supervisor, Professor Bijay K. Danta for his constant support and guidance all through this project. It has been an honor being his scholar. I thank him for believing in me and for his patience with which he went through the minutest details of the thesis, strengthening it with suggestions from time to time in the midst of all other responsibilities that he has to shoulder apart from that of a supervisor. In spite of the endless mistakes I made during the course of this research, he gave me the confidence and courage needed to complete it. He has taught me, both consciously and unconsciously, how research work is done.

I would like to extend my sincere gratitude to Professor Farheena Danta, Dept. of English & Foreign Languages, Tezpur University, for her unending support and cooperation throughout the research years. She has been a constant compassionate and supportive presence both on the work and personal front.
