

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I find no words to express my special appreciation, thanks and gratitude to Professor Farheena Danta who has been an inspiring mentor for me while the work of this doctoral dissertation was in progress. Completion of this work has been possible only because of the guidance and support, both academic and physical, I received from her during my association with her as a Ph.D student of Tezpur University.

Special thanks are due to Professor Bijay K. Danta, a member of the doctoral committee, who ungrudgingly helped me in various ways in the preparation of this dissertation. His suggestions showed me the way to try to improve the dissertation in more than one direction.

I acknowledge with gratitude the official help I received from the Head of the Department, Professor Madhumita Borbora, and the members of the DRC. I must thank the office staff of the Department for carrying out all my official work promptly during this period.

Some of my fellow Research Scholars, in particular Navaneeta Bhuyan and Porosha Sonowal, deserve my sincere thanks for their friendly help and encouragement in many ways while I was pursuing the project.

I am grateful to the Tezpur University Authorities for extending academic and administrative support to complete the project. I must record my appreciation of the cooperation I received from the staff of the Central Library, Tezpur University, whenever I approached them for help while I was engaged in the work. I also gratefully acknowledge the support of the Authorities and my colleagues of C.K.B. College, Teok.

I am extremely grateful to my family members—my parents, my husband Amarjyoti for their mental support and my two kids, Arjav and Arinjai, for their forbearance of all the deprivations while I was busy with caste, class and ideology.

Lastly, I deem it my pleasant duty to offer my sincerest thanks to the proprietors of Sonu Computers, Tezpur, for helping me with the printing of the thesis.
