

Table of Contents

Content	Page No.
Abstract	i
Declaration	ii
Certificate of the Supervisor	iii
Acknowledgements	iv
Table of Contents	v-vi
Introduction	1-20
Background of the study
Food Studies in India
A Note on the Corpus
Objectives
Hypotheses
Methodology
Review of Literature
Chapter Plan
Relevance
Chapter One	21-40
Theorising Food
Introduction
The Rise of Theoretical Approaches to Food
Theoretical Aspects of Food
Situating the Discourse of Food through Literary and Social Theories
Conclusion
Chapter Two	41-82
Colonial Modernity, Culinary Imperialism and the Construction of Hunger
Introduction
Understanding Colonial Modernity
Colonial Modernity in India
Culinary Imperialism and the Self-(Re)fashioning of Taste
The Construction of Hunger: Experiments in Food and Famines

Critiquing the Representation of Food and Hunger in Select Novels
Conclusion
Chapter Three	83-121
Food as Self-Discipline: A Study of Gandhian Morality
Introduction
The Consolidation of Gandhi's Dietetic Discourse
Nature Cure as an Alternative to Drugs
Fasting and the Adoption of Brahmacharya
The Conception of Satyagraha and the Necessity of Self-reliance
The Advantages of Non-Violence and Compassion
Critical Representation of Gandhi
Critiquing Gandhi's Dietetic Ideologies in Select Novels
Conclusion
Chapter Four	122-159
The Politics of Food in The Domestic Realm: Restrictions and Resistances
Introduction
Gender in the Household
Operation of Power in the Domestic Sphere
Politicising the Mundane: Eating and Resisting
Critiquing the Politics of Food in Select Novels
Conclusion
Chapter Five	160-199
Food and The Indian Diaspora
Introduction
The Formation of the Indian Diaspora
The Journey of Indian Food: From Assimilation to Commodification
Critiquing the Representation of Food and the Indian Diaspora in Select Novels
Conclusion
Conclusion	200-206
Bibliography	207-221
List of Publications	222