

Contents

Abstract	i
Declaration	vii
Certificate	ix
Acknowledgment	x
List of Tables	xv
List of Figures	xvi
List of abbreviations	xviii
Chapter 1: Introduction
1.0. The Assamese language	1
1.1. Literature review	2
1.2. Some major works in the core case system in Assamese	4
1.3. Research gaps	6
 Chapter 2: Construction Grammar
2.0. Introduction	17
2.1. The Componential model	17
2.2. The emergence of the constructionist approach	19
2.3. The Cognitive Construction Grammar	22
2.3.1. The CCG and argument structure	24
2.3.2. Frame Semantics and FrameNet	25
2.3.3. The integration/ fusion of verbs and ASCs	28
2.3.4. Coercion	32
2.4. The network of the Constructions	34
 Chapter 3: The Intransitive Construction in Assamese
3.0. Introduction	37
3.1. The Intransitive construction	37
3.1.1. The interaction of verb with the ‘ S-e V ’ and ‘ S-ø V ’	38
3.2. The Subject Oblique and Verb constructions	43
3.2.1. The intransitive motion construction	43
3.2.1.1. The source marker ‘-pora’	45
3.2.1.2. The goal marker ‘loi’	47
3.2.1.3. The goal-oriented marker ‘loike’	48
3.2.1.4. The goal-oriented marker ‘fale’	49

3.2.1.5. Route marker ‘hoi’	49
3.2.1.6. Route marker ‘pare pare/kakhe- kakhe’	50
3.2.2. The interaction of verbs with the ‘ S Obl<sub>(path)</sub> V ’	51
3.2.3. The intransitive locative construction	54
3.2.3.1. The interaction of verbs with the ‘ S Obl<sub>(loc)</sub> V ’	55
3.2.4. The conative construction	57
3.2.4.1. The interaction of verbs with the ‘ S-e Obl<sub>(loc)</sub> V ’	58
3.2.5 The copula construction
(The subject complement construction)	60
3.2.5.1. The interaction of the subject complement	60
3.3. Non-canonical Intransitives	61
3.3.1 The genitive subject	62
3.3.1.1. The interaction of the verbs with the genitive subject construction	64
3.3.2. The passive construction	66
3.3.2.1. The interaction of verbs with the passive construction	66
3.4. The network of the intransitive constructions	68

Chapter 4: The Transitive Constructions in Assamese

4.0. Introduction	69
4.1. The Transitive construction in Assamese	71
4.1.1. The change of state verbs	72
4.1.2 The verbs of creation	73
4.1.3 Verbs of change of location	75
4.1.4. Verbs of impact	75
4.1.5. Verbs of Mental Events	76
4.1.6. Verbs of knowledge	77
4.1.7. The interactions of verbs with the Transitive construction	79
4.1.8. The constructional polysemy	83
4.2. The Transitive Subject Oblique Constructions	85
4.2.1. The Caused Motion construction	85

4.2.1.1. The interaction of verbs with the CMC	87
4.2.2. The resultative construction	90
4.2.2.1. The interaction of the verb with the Resultative construction	90
4.2.3. The Cause Transfer Construction	92
4.2.3.1 The interaction of the verbs with the CRC	93
4.3. Non-canonical transitive constructions	94
4.3.1 The transitive Genitive subject construction	95
4.3.1.1. The interaction of verbs with the Genitive subject construction	97
4.3.2. The transitive Genitive subject and dative object construction	98
4.3.2.1. The integration of complex predicates/ verbs with the transitive Genitive subject and Dative Object construction	99
4.3.3. The dative subject construction	101
4.3.3.1. The interaction of the verb ‘ ah ’ with the dative subject construction	102
4.3.4. The locative subject construction	103
4.3.4.1 The interaction of the verbs with the locative subject construction	103
4.3.5. The object-subject construction	105
4.3.5.1 The interaction of the verbs with the construction	106
4.4. The relationship between the construction	107
4.5. The Ditransitive construction	108
4.5.1 The Assamese Ditransitive construction	110
4.5.1.1 The interaction of verbs with the ditransitive construction	112
4.5.2. The allostruction	114

4.5.3 The Assamese Ditransitive construction and the Cause Transfer construction	115
---	-----

Chapter 5: Argument Structure Construction and Event schema in Assamese

5.0. Introduction	119
5.1 The being schema	121
5.2 The happening schema	122
5.3 The doing schema	123
5.4 The experiencing schema	126
5.5 The having schema	128
5.6 The transfer schema	129
5.7 The moving schema	130
5.8. The relation between ASCs and Event Schemas	132

Chapter 6: Conclusion

6.0. Introduction	141
6.1. The network of the Argument Structure Constructions in Assamese	146

References	150
-------------------	-----

List of Publication	158
----------------------------	-----