Chapter 1: Introduction	1
1.1. General Introduction	1
1.1.1. Functions of Tone	2
1.2. Research Gap and Research Objectives	3
1.3. Literature Review	4
1.3.1. Development of Tone: Tonogenesis	4
1.3.2. Tonal Languages of the World	6
1.3.2.1. Asain Tonal Languages	7
1.3.2.2. African Tonal Languages	8
1.3.2.3. Tonal Languages of India	9
1.3.2.3.1. Existing Research on Chokri	10
1.4. Primary Methodology Adopted in this Study	11
1.5. Language Description	11
1.5.1. Generic Classification of the Language	14
1.5.2. Dialects of Chokri	15
1.6. Structure of this Dissertation	16
References	18
Chapter 2: Phoneme Inventory of Chokri	28
2.1. Introduction	28
2.2. Chokri Phonemes	28
2.2.1. Consonants	28
2.2.1.1. Plosives	28
2.2.1.2. Nasals and Laterals	30
2.2.1.3. Approximants and Flap	33
2.2.1.3.1. Bilabial Approximant [w]	34
2.2.1.3.2. Alveolar Taps [ɾ] and [ɽ]	34
2.2.1.4. Fricatives	35
2.2.1.5. Affricates	37
2.2.2. Vowel	40
2.2.2.1. Production Experiment: Stimuli, Subjects, and Recording Procedure	41

2.2.2.2. Acoustic Analysis of Chokri Vowels	42
2.2.2.3. Results and Discussion	43
2.2.2.1. Vowel Space Comparison of Male and Female Speakers	47
References	54
Chapter 3: Phonotactics and Phonological Processes in Chokri	57
3.1. Introduction	57
3.2. Syllable Structure	58
3.2.1. Monosyllabic Word	58
3.2.1.1. Open Monosyllable V or Syllabic Nasals	59
3.2.1.2. Open Monosyllable C ₁ V	59
3.2.1.3. Open Monosyllable C ₁ C ₂ V	60
3.2.2. Disyllabic Words	60
3.2.2.1. Disyllabic V.CV	60
3.2.2.2. Disyllabic CV.CV	61
3.3. Phonemes and Allophones	65
3.3.1. Complementary Distribution	65
3.3.2. Free Variation	65
3.4. Consonant Cluster	67
3.4.1. Sonority Sequencing Principle	67
3.5. Word Minimality Requirement.	68
3.6. Phonological Processes	69
3.6.1. Deletion	69
3.6.1.1. Vowel Deletion	69
3.6.1.2. Consonant Deletion	70
3.6.1.3. Syncope	70
3.6.1.4. Morpheme Deletion	71
3.6.2. Insertion	72
3.6.3. Lenition	73
3.6.4. Fortition	74
3.6.5. Vowel Lengthening	75
3.6.6. Assimilation.	75
3.6.6.1. Voicing Assimilation	76

3.6.7. Syllabification	76
3.7. Conclusion	76
References	78
Chapter 4: Tone	80
4.1. General Introduction	80
4.2. Production Experiment	81
4.2.1. Participants, Materials, and Recording Procedure	81
4.2.2. Measurements: Post Recording	82
4.3. Acoustic Analysis of f0 Directionality	83
4.3.1. Chokri and its Tonal Notation	86
4.3.2. Normalization of Speech Data	87
4.3.3. Statistical Modeling	90
4.4. Results:	93
4.4.1. f0 Contrasts in Monosyllabic Words	93
4.4.2. The Role of Duration in Monosyllabic Words	95
4.4.3. The Role of Intensity in Monosyllabic Words	97
4.4.4. Tonal Contrasts in Bisyllabic Words	101
4.4.4.1. f0 Contrasts in Bisyllabis Words	101
4.4.4.2. The Role of Duration in Bisyllabic Words	105
4.4.4.3. The Role of Intensity in Bisyllabic Words	108
4.5. Perception of Lexical Tones	110
4.5.1. Designing Perception Test	111
4.5.2. Results and Discussion	114
4.6. Tone Bearing Unit in Chokri	120
References	124
Chapter 5: Grammatical Tone	127
5.1. General Introduction	127
5.2. Grammatical Tone Across Tonal Languages	128
5.3. Typological Classification of Grammatical Tone	129
5.4. Grammatical Functions of Tone in Chokri	130

5.4.1. Inflectional Function of Grammatical Tone	131
5.4.1.1. Tone Marking Persons	131
5.4.1.2. Tone Marking Aspects	132
5.4.1.3. Tone Marking Mood and Modality	134
5.4.2. Derivational Function of Grammatical Tone	134
5.4.2.1. Tone Deriving Nouns from Verbs	134
5.4.2.2. Tone Deriving Nouns from Adjectives	135
5.5. Discussion	137
5.5.1. Grammatical Tone Formation in Chokri: A Case of Grammaticalization	137
5.5.1.1. Perfective vs. Perfect Aspect in Chokri	139
5.5.1.2. Three Hypotheses for Grammatical Tone Formation	140
5.5.1.3. Grammaticalization Processes in Chokri	142
5.5.2. Interaction of Lexical Tone and Grammatical Tone	143
5.5.3. Distinguishing Grammatical Tone from Lexical Tone	144
5.5.4. Typology of Grammatical Tone in Chokri	145
5.5.4.1. Grammatical Tone Through Tonological Processes	145
5.5.4.2. Exponence of Grammatical Tone in Chokri	146
5.6. Conclusion	147
References	148
Chapter 6: Morphophonology of Tone in Chokri	151
6.1. General Introduction	151
6.2. Analysis of Tone in Affixes Paradigm	154
6.2.1. Production Recording	154
6.2.2. Data Annotation	156
6.3. Results and Discussion	156
6.3.1. Verbal Suffixes	156
6.3.1.1. Progressive Aspect Suffix [-va]	156
6.3.1.2. Imperative Negation Suffix [-hi]	158
6.3.1.3. Causative Prefix /me-/	159
6.3.1.4. Nominalizer Prefix [t ^h ε-]	160
6.3.2. Nominal Suffixes	162
6.3.2.1. Plural Suffix [-kɔ]	162

6.3.2.2. Dual Suffix [-ni]	164
6.4. Analysis of Tone in Compounding Paradigm	165
6.4.1. Noun + Noun	165
6.4.2. Noun + Verb	165
6.4.3. Noun + Adjective	166
6.4.4. Coordinate Compound	166
6.5. Analysis of Tone in Reduplication Paradigm	167
6.5.1. Distributive Reduplication	167
6.5.2. Iterative Reduplication	170
6.6. Discussion/Conclusion	173

Chapter 7: CONCLUSION	179
7.1. Introduction	179
7.2. Phoneme Inventory	179
7.3. Phonotactics and Phonological Processes in Chokri	179
7.4. Tone	180
7.5. Grammatical Tone	180
7.6. Morphophonology of Tone	181
7.6.1. Compounding	182
7.6.2. Reduplication	182
7.7. Implications and Future Directions	183
7.7.1. Comparative Tonal Studies in the Angami-Pochuri Group	183
7.7.2. Phonetic and Acoustic Analysis of Tonal Interactions	183
7.7.3. Diachronic and Historical Development of Tone	184
7.7.4. Computational Modelling of Chokri Tone	184
7.8. Conclusion	184
